'Stonewalling' options in cover-up discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disconsolate President Nixon discussing options for "stonewalling" Watergate investigations was heard by the Watergate cover-up jury on tape today as John Dean was on the stand for the fourth day.

"It's a long road, isn't it, for all of us, for all of us," Nixon said at one point. "I mean, what the hell are you going to do?"

The discussion occurred on March 21. 1973 — on the afternoon of the day when Dean, the White House counsel, had laid out for the President the names of White House people who were vulnerable to indictment.

They discussed setting up a presidential panel to gather evidence or sending White House people to the grand jury under a grant of immunity so they could not be charged.

Two of the defendants in the trial, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, participated in the afternoon discussion. Ehrlichman pressed the President to have Dean put on a report that Nixon then could send to the Senate investigation then

Discussing that idea, Nixon says: "I ask for a written report ... which is very general, understand?"

"Understand," the President repeats and laughs, adding: "I don't want to get all that Goddamned specific. I'm thinking now in far more general terms ...

"If you make it quite general in terms of ... your investigation indicates that this

DST to end on Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten straight months of Daylight Saving Time will end Sunday when the nation goes on standard time for the four winter months.

The nation will set back its clocks one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, the result of congressional action that ended the nation's experiment with year-round daylight time.

Under the new legislation, the nation will stay on standard time until 2 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, 1975.

The year-round daylight time experiment was designed to save fuel during the country's energy shortage. The Senate Commerce Committee reported the experiment resulted in about 100,000 barrels of oil per day being saved during the first four months of 1974.

However, that committee said such savings "must be balanced against a majority of the public's distaste for the observance of Daylight Saving Time" during the

The Department of Transportation agreed that some fuel was saved during the winter months but said longer daylight hours may have increased gasoline consumption in March and April by up to one per cent.

Ehrlichman suggests that if that idea is adopted, "to give some weight to that, could you attach as an appendix a list of the FBI reports to which you had access ... so that the President at some later time is in a position to say 'I relied.""

Ehrlichman said then that if there were further disclosures, Nixon would be in a stronger position to say that he justifiably relied on Dean's report.

A few days later, Dean went to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., but failed to write a report.

Instead, he later hired an attorney and began telling the Watergate story to federal prosecutors

Utility is refusing extortion demands

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The Bonneville Power Administration, faced with a dynamite-wielding extortionist demanding $1 million, today said "there are not enough people in the United States to protect" power line towers.

However, BPA Administrator Don Hodel reiterated the Northwest utility's determination to "refuse to pay any amount of extortion.

Vice-presidential choice is defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is standing by his nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller. declaring. "I'm still convinced he would make a good vice president."

Ford, fielding questions from five newsmen aboard Air Force One late Saturday, was asked whether any conservative Republicans had urged him to withdraw the increasingly controversial nomination.

"I wouldn't say anybody seriously." the President responded, implying that such advice had been received.

Standing in shirtsleeves in the aisle of the plane as it brought him home from a campaign trip to Louisville, Ky.. Ford held what amounted to an informal news conference.

Ford said he expected Rockefeller's nomination to be confirmed before the President's planned trip to Japan next month. This would seem to be out of the question since Ford tentatively plans to leave the country Nov. 17 and Congress does not return from its election recess until the following day.

Meanwhile. Rockefeller was described by a prominent Senate Democrat as "a man who has great experience, tremendous ability."

The comment came from Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who said in an interview Sunday on the CBS program "Face the Nation" that he still planned to vote for Rockefeller's confirmation despite the recent financial disclosures.

Byrd said, however, that he was glad that the Senate would not be voting immediately on the nomination because "there are many questions that remain to be answered." He said the Rockefeller gifts and loans raise a more seious question than the back taxes.

In New York Sunday. Rockefeller said through spokesman Hugh Morrow that he gave Henry A. Kissinger $50,000 to enable Kissinger to join the Nixon administration as head of the National Security Council.

And. Rockefeller was quoted in an interview in Time magazine as saying that Kissinger was concerned about earning less in Washington than he had been, because "he had just got divorced and had responsibilities to his children and to his former wife.

Kent State jury selection begins

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Three of the first 12 prospective jurors were excused today as jury selection began in the trial of eight ex-Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in connection with the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Chief U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti released the three after asking them questions about their state of mind relative to the case.

The defendants are being tried for alleged civil rights violations in the shootings.

Armed robbery occurs at local motel

An armed man took an undetermined amount of money from the Ramada Inn, 3501 West Broadway, about 9 p.m. Sunday, police reported Monday.

The man, described as tall and slender, reportedly approached desk clerk Linda Buford, 22, Cole Camp, and pulled a .38-caliber pistol. The man then asked for money and gave her a paper bag.

The assistant manager of the motel was watching television in the lobby at the time of the theft, and Mrs. Buford said that he was aware of the robbery but did not attempt to stop the man because of the

Mrs. Buford reported that the man was about 24 years old and seemed to be extremely nervous. He reportedly left the motel and headed west on Highway 50 in a dark colored station wagon.

Police reported that they recovered a large amount of money that the robber apparently dropped while attempting to get away. No value had been set for the amount lost at noon Monday.

It was the second armed robbery reported in less than a week in the West Broadway area.

Broadway area.

Two men robbed the Burger Chef restaurant Wednesday of about $176 and escaped on foot.

Acting police chief Charles Knapp said Monday that police are still investigating the Burger Chef robbery and are working on several leads in the case. He said that police have not yet determined if there is any connection between the two cases.

The eight were indicted by a federal grand jury last March 29. They are accused of violating the civil rights of four students who were killed and nine others who were wounded when Guardsmen opened fire on groups of campus demonstrators May 4, 1970.

U.S. District Court officials summoned 125 prospective jurors to appear today and said more will be called if necessary.

The prosecution and the defense each have lists of 150 potential witnesses, but attorneys indicated they do not expect to call all of them. One attorney estimated that about 100 witnesses in all will be called to the stand. The trial is expected to last several weeks.

Convictions could result in $1,000 fines and life prison terms.

Chief Judge Frank J. Battisti has ordered attorneys and principals in the case not to discuss it with reporters.

The defendants are seven Ohio men. Lawrence A. Shafer. 28, and James D. McGee. 27. Ravenna; William E. Perkins. 28, Canton: Ralph W. Zoller. 27. Mantua; Barry W. Morris. 29, Kent; Mathew J. McManus. 28, West Salem; Leon H. Smith. 27. Beach City, and James E. Pierce. 29. Amelia Island, Fla.

The indictment says the former Guardsmen willfully assaulted and intimidated demonstrators by firing weapons in their direction during the protest against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

The Ohio National Guard was ordered to the school on May 2, 1970, by then-Gov. James A. Rhodes. Demonstrators had burned the Army Reserve Training Corps building on the campus.

After the shootings, a presidential commission, a state grand jury called by Rhodes and the Federal Bureau of Investigation conducted investigations.

'New dialogue' is promised by Ford

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Promising a "new dialogue" with Latin-American nations, President Ford met Mexican President Luis Echeverria at this border city today to begin nine hours of hopscotch diplomacy.

Ford, in remarks at the ceremonial exchange of greetings at the border, said the day's summit sessions at locations in Mexico and Arizona "symbolize the relationship between our two countries."

Oil and economic matters promised to dominate the talks between the two presidents.

"It is a working partnership of mutual cooperation which exemplifies the spirit behind the new dialogue into which we have entered with the nations of Latin America," Ford said.

It was Ford's first venture onto foreign soil since he became President on Aug. 9, and he said, "it provides a living demonstration of how we are inextricably linked...."

There were indications that Echeverria might like to trade oil for Washington's agreement to admit migrant Mexican farm workers - a development that would help ease Mexico's serious unemployment problems.

Ford was expected to stress north-of-the-border concern about the flow of illegal immigrants from Mexico at a time when the United States has a mounting unemployment problem of its own.

The U.S. President told reporters

Saturday night that immigration, oil, joint efforts to curb traffic in illicit narcotics and seven or eight other matters of mutual concern would be taken up. There was no formal agenda for the discussions.

Ford's itingrary had him flying from

Ford's itinerary had him flying from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to David-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson, Ariz., then going by helicopter to Nogales to greet Echeverria.

The two presidents were to fly by helicopter to Magdalena de Kino 70 miles south of the border for nearly two hours of talks at the local city hall.

Ford and Echeverria then will go by helicopter to Tubac, Ariz., 15 miles north of the border, for a luncheon and more discussions.

Firm date on Miller hearing is expected

Setting a firm date for a public hearing on the suspension and recommended discharge of Police Chief William Miller and reviewing suggestions relating to the future of economic development in the city are expected to be two primary considerations at tonight's City Council meeting.

Fourth Ward Republican George Dugan

Jr. Wednesday indicated he would introduce a motion at the council meeting, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building, to establish Oct. 29 as the date for the hearing.

The date was tentatively agreed upon by councilmen at a special closed meeting held Oct. 14.

Regarding the economic development director position, the council is expected to consider several suggestions from the city Economic Development Board. This will occur during the pre-council session, to begin at 6:30 p.m. in the conference room.

The situation was supposedly settled Oct. 7 with the council's approval, by a 4-3 vote along party lines, of Dana Rotegard, Minneapolis, for the position. However, Rotegard decided last week not to accept the position.

Among the alternatives to be offered for the council's consideration, it was indicated last week, are possibly subsidizing the local Chamber of Commerce, hiring Mayor Jerry Jones on a part-time basis, stopping all efforts to secure a director for Sedalia, or changing the city ordinance that governs the hiring of a director.

The governors and mayors, many of whom got telegrams a week ago from Ford asking for stricter speed limit enforcement, say their states are already doing everything possible given the manpower available.

Many officials. including state and local police, say the basic problems are that the public is not convinced that energy conservation will help cut inflation and there are too many speeders for the police to handle, a nationwide Associated Press survey shows.

The survey also showed that:
-With minor exceptions, the

With minor exceptions, the nation's governors and mayors plan no special actions on speed limit enforcement because of Ford's telegram.
 Many states have upped manpower to monitor speeding violations since last winter and speeding tickets are up considerably in many states. Nearly all officials say there is no way to further increase patrols, despite Ford's request.

—Some states treat drivers speeding over the national limit but under the old state limit less severely than those exceeding the old limits.

—Many states do not stop drivers traveling above 55 m.p.h. until they approach a set speed — say, 62 m.p.h.

—In scattered areas, judges are dismissing charges against people caught speeding over 55 m.p.h but under old limits; police in some areas give warnings instead of tickets to such speeders.

"South Dakota enforces its speed laws, and will continue to do so." said Gov. Richard Kniep, who plans no changes in state procedures on speeding. "The basic problem with enforcement is that once a sizeable percentage of the population begins to ignore the speed limit, or any law, it is hard to control.

"As a practical matter, if everyone on the highway is traveling 60 miles per hour, a patrolmen can hardly stop them all and can hardly be expected to selectively choose which ones to pick."

"My total reaction to Mr. Ford's proposal is that he's trying to organize a high school cheerleading team," said St. Paul. Minn.. Mayor Lawrence Cohen. He called Ford's suggestions

Rhode Island Gov. Philip W. Noel was one of the few officials who said he planned to increase the number of troopers on the road. He also said he would ask the state police superintendent to meet with local police to advise them of Ford's telegram.

WARRENSBURG Members of the LaMonte Nautilus MFWC Club reviewed Warrensburg history Thursday by visiting the old Court House and Museum here. Dr. A. L. Stevenson, past president of the Warrensburg Historical Society, was the host.

He explained that the building was constructed in 1838, just four years after Johnson County was created and that the site was chosen by three commissioners, one of whom was Daniel Boone.

The court house was used for Johnson County business until 1878. The famous "Tribute to a Dog" was given by Sen. George G. Vest there.

The building continues to be restored as funds are donated. The original architect's specifications were found when the present court house was redecorated, and consequently, all restorations to the old court house are authentic.

What will cure hiccups?

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have had several attacks of hiccups. The last was about three weeks ago. It lasted for one week while I was placed in a hospital. The treatment I received was not specific, but consisted of tranquilizers and sleeping pills. I would like to know if there is any rather direct treatment for hiccups. I have stopped drinking any effervescent drinks and colas and pop.

Dear Reader — There are many cures for hiccups. Most work best if done just at the time the hiccups were going to stop anyway, in spite of what you do. Then you can say, wisely, that you cured your

Breathing into a brown paper bag - I have always wondered why it must be brown standing on your head, holding your breath, or having someone scare you all work - provided you do it just when the hiccups are ready to stop anyway. Timing is very important because if you use these and many other remedies before the hiccups are ready to stop anyway, your treatment will be a failure

Treating many hiccups is much like treating a cold. A cold may last a week if you don't treat it and will only last seven days if you do.

Some hiccups are caused by distention of the stomach and factors that irritate the diaphragm just above the stomach. Hence, overeating, gas on the stomach, and hiatal hernia of part of the stomach through the diaphragm can be factors. You are wise to avoid the soda drinks.

Hiccups can also be caused by irritation of an area in the brain. Finally, they seem to be related to a reflex that involves the back of the throat.

Other than the passage of time and the use of sedatives or similar methods, I know of two direct methods that are helpful in some cases.

The first is done by taking a teaspoon and putting some vinegar on the back side of the spoon. Then open the mouth and rub the spoon at the area near the uvula in the back of the throat. The uvula is the lobe of tissue hanging down from the midline at the back of the throat. The uvula should be touched. The vinegar or the mechanical action may stop the hiccups at once in some people. Apparently this local action interferes with the hiccup reflex and effects a cure.

Still another cure was reported about three years ago by Dr. Edgar Engleman and colleagues, then from the Miami School of Medicine. They found that the old treatment of swallowing a teaspoon of dry, granulated sugar stopped the hiccups in 19 of 20 cases. In some instances the hiccups had been present over 24 hours before treatment was attempted. In those that had a recurrence of the hiccup. repeating the simple treatment stopped them immediately. The sugar treatment is not because of the glucose or anything like that. It may be closely related to the spoon and vinegar treatment and by mechanically stimulating the back of the throat with the granular material, it may interrupt the hiccup reflex mechanism.

Neither of these treatments are dangerous, so the next time you have hiccups, try either one and see if it works. It could be a sweet way to avoid spending a week in the hospital. (NEA)

Officials say no recession

NEW YORK (AP) - Debt repayments on installment loans are taking most of the discretionary income of some consumers. Layoffs are mounting. Factories are slowing the production lines.

What do these characteristics suggest? Well, certainly not a recession, if you use the standards of the administration. President Ford says there's no recession. So does his commerce secretary, Frederick

Earlier in the year Dent referred to the economic decline as an "energy-crisis spasm." Last week, after the third straight quarterly decline in the Gross National Product, he explained "the spasm continues."

What really is occuring, Dent explained, is "sideways waffling," a term that will be variously interpreted as an effort to hide the truth, a lack of awareness, or a frightening attempt at euphony that recalls the reassuring statements of the early Hoover administration.

Mysteriously, the definition of "recession" disappeared with the onset of what once used to be called recession. The most popular definition was two consecutive quarters of declining Gross National Product. To date, the GNP has fallen for three straight quarters - 7 per cent in the first three months of 1974, 1.6 per cent in the second three, and 2.9 per cent in the third quarter. Moreover, a further decline.

most likely larger than that in the third quarter, is likely to occur in the final three months of the year. And a large number of responsible economists foresee a continued decline ear-

U.S. embassy Four are denies CIA involvement

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) - The U.S. embassy today denied that the Central Intelligence Agency is involved in demonstrations against President Nguyen Van Thieu and accused North Vietnam of a "crudely obvious attempt to exploit the

The embassy statement was issued after another anti-Thieu demonstration Sunday in Saigon in which a police jeep was burned and the National Assembly building was stoned. There were peaceful anti-government rallies in Hue, Can Tho and other towns.

The embassy cited Viet Cong statements in the past two weeks charging that the CIA is giving support to dissident political groups in South Vietnam.

'The United States does not encourage, nor does it support in any way, any political faction in Vietnam," the American statement said. "These accusations are utterly groundless and totally

The statement also cited recent Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military attacks. It said by destruction of roads. bridges and other important installations, North Vietnam is "seeking to increase the economic suffering of the South Vietnamese people in the hope that it can exploit politically the resulting misery.

The Viet Cong on Oct. 12 claimed that the U.S. government was trying to infiltrate agents into the dissident South Vietnamese political groups to "manipulate and turn" the dissent to the benefit of the United States.

The Communists charge that the United States is conducting a "double-faced" policy: pushing Thieu to make reforms to strengthen his position and at the same time trying to develop a position of influence with the opposition in case Thieu is overthrown.

U.S. officials contend that the Viet Cong is conducting the "double-faced" policy: assailing the United States for its support of Thieu and at the same time accusing the United States of preparing a fallback position should he be ousted.

Some analysts say they believe the Viet Cong is laying the groundwork, should Thieu be forced out, to refuse to cooperate with his successor by claiming that the United States was behind the change. So far, however, there is no suggestion that the anti-Thieu movement is strong enough to topple him.

No specific emigration figures set

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — President Ford said today the United States has no assurance the Soviets will permit a minimum of 60,000 Jews and others to leave that country each year in exchange for improved trade status with the United

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., last week announced agreement ending a twoyear impasse over Soviet trade status in exchange for guarantees over freer Jewish emigration. Jackson said the agreement included a "benchmark" figure of 60,000 as a minimum standard of compliance.

In a "clarifying statement" issued through Press Secretary Ron Nessen, Ford said an accord on emigration with the Soviet Union mentions no specific figures.

The statement of clarification was issued aboard Air Force One as Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Davis-Monthan Air Force Base here en route to a border region meeting with Mexican President Luis Echeverria.

Kissinger had written Jackson that he anticipated, as a result of the Soviet-American agreement, an increase from the 1973 level of immigration. White House sources said the numbers then were 35,000 to 38,000.

The agreement presumably cleared the way for early congressional passage of major trade legislation that would permit Ford to grant tariff concessions and credits to the Soviets.

Jackson and allies in Congress had blocked action on the trade bill until they were satisfied the Soviets would permit freer emigration of Jews without harassments and reprisals.

All these problems do not eliminate the fact that decisions have to be made during this low profit period. Some producers' decisions will not be as critical as others. It all depends on the needs of meeting debt repayment schedules, family lving expenses, and the role the beef herd plays in providing income to meet these obligations.

For some producers, the major problem may be to figure some way of meeting only their cash flow obligations. To do this, what about the alternative of selling a cow (producing unit; this fall and keeping back a heifer to gear up production to years later.

By the fall of 1976, the heifer is a young productive cow in her prime whereas the cow would be two years older.

Wintering and grazing the heifer reduces the need for hay and pasture, thus reducing cash costs for fertilizer and hay harvesting costs. Or, if forage production is continued at the same level, a steer could be grown on the available feed another possible increase in cash income

Herbicides control

As you harvest crops this fall, take a good look at the results of this year's herbicide program, a suggestion from David Lindell. Area Agronomy Specialist. In your fields check to see if you used the desireable herbicide at the right time for the weed problem, soil type and overall management. Would a different application method or herbicide have reduced total weed problems? Did herbicide injury result from overdosage, sandy soils, or unusual weather conditions?

There is much more to weed control than selecting methods of application. Also consider the stage of growth of both crop and weeds as well as soil texture, amount of organic matter in the soil and weather conditions during and after application.

Prussic acid

Fall is a season when conditions occur that could result in prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drouth, freezing or near freezing temperatures.

Be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. They may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. They may also be used after the stubble is dead and thoroughly cured.

Forages are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 15 to 18 inches high Neither sudangrass nor sorghum-suden is dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Some farmers are hesitant about turning animals into grain sorghum stubble after heads have been harvested. Such stubble is absolutely safe when plants are dead and throughly

For those who want to pasture such fields while some of the foliage is still green, the forage can be tested for prussic acid content. Most veterinarians are equipped to make such tests. Second growth milo is usually very high in prussic acid.

If cattle or sheep — the most susceptible farm animals become poisoned from prussic acid, remove them from the area being pastured and call a veterinarian immediately. Treatment must often be given quickly to avoid death.

FDR comparisons aren't really valid

right from the start that he was a Ford, not a Lincoln. Neither, it now appears, is he a Roosevelt.

Among other criticisms, the President's strategy for a war against inflation has been unfavorably compared with the bold initiatives introduced by FDR back in the dark days of the Great Depression.

Those who make this comparison seem to forget, however, that invaluable as was Roosevelt's leadership for the morale of the nation and as worthwhile his many programs in alleviating the worst aspects of the Depression, nothing he proposed and nothing Congress disposed had any real effect on the fundamental malaise of the economy.

In fact, after four years of the New Deal, the economy went into another tailspin that was in some ways worse than that of 1929-32. It wasn't until the middle of World War II that the last vestiges of the Depression were erased.

Well, one thing this country does not need is another shooting war, although it could be wished that inflation were as clearly identifiable an enemy as the one Americans were up against in the 1940s. It is not. Inflation is an amorphous, hydra-headed disease, choice? (NEA)

President Ford made it clear the cure for which even the best economic minds cannot agree on.

> Then, too, Roosevelt had only a depression to worry about. If nobody had much money, at least prices were in the basement along with them. Mr. Ford faces not only a fledgling depression but one that is combined with a spiraling cost of living that is close to being out of control.

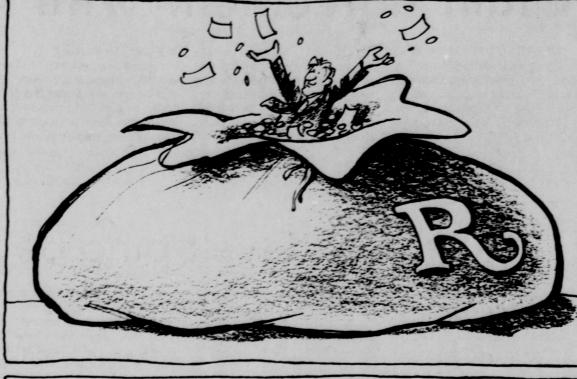

> Still, one thing Americans definitely could use right now is a little inspiration—to be given hope, to be convinced that concrete steps are being taken to attack the nation's complex economic

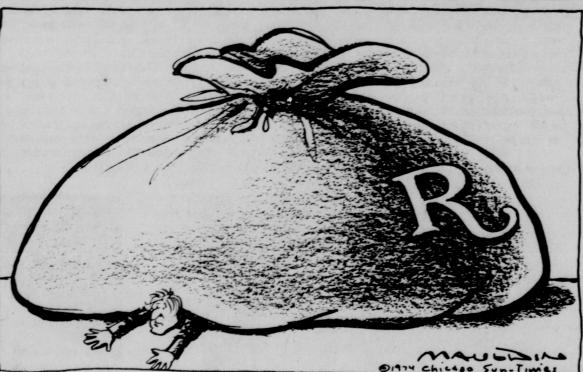

> It is in failing to do this that Mr. Ford's "Whip Inflation Now" program may most be found wanting. The slogan itself lacks rallying power-again possibly because inflation is only one face of the enemy.

What the President seems to have come up with is a list of cautious steps designed to mean the least discomfort for the greatest number of people.

Nevertheless, no one, including the nation's most prestigious economists, has offered any better list of solutions.

Ford deserves all the support we can give him. Is there any other

Superiors pressure a postal employe

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Like an episode out of the Watergate coverup trial, two associates of Postmaster General Ted Klassen recently pressured a postal employe not to talk to the FBI about "malpractice" in the Postal Service.

They have successfully intimidated the employe, who is keeping his mouth shut rather than risk losing his job. He canceled an appointment with FBI agent Frank Korn, explaining that "I am forced to bow

From Justice Department sources, we have obtained a copy of the postal official's sworn statement to the FBL To protect him from possible retaliation, however, we have agreed not to disclose his name.

Meanwhile, Klassen himself has been pulling wires on Capitol Hill to spike a congressional investigation of his postal operations. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif. told us he had been subjected to "subtle pressure" to sidetrack his investigation of the Postal Service." I resent it very much."

While all this has been going on behind the scenes, Klassen had the audacity to call a press conference and announce he would throw open the Postal Service's doors to investigators. He offered to provide a room for investigative reporters who want to dig up dirt on his conduct. They will be given access, he vowed, to the pertinent postal

Just to make sure the records are complete, we will also make available our postal documents. These will show that Klassen has squandered the taxpayers' money, favored friends with postal contracts and accepted a $22,917 fee from a firm that got postal business through him.

The documents will include a letter from the postal employe that smacks of Watergate tactics. The letter describes his encounter with the two Klassen associates. He identified them only as a postal superior and a former postal executive.

"They pointed out to me," he wrote to agent Korn, "that they were aware of a telephone inquiry for me, at my office. that had come in trom a Mr. Korn during Derwinski to cancel a trip to Tokyo in my absence. They said, 'We're aware of who Mr. Korn is, and of his interest in certain alleged malpractices in the Postal

The two men told him, according to the letter, that "the 'people up front were plenty sick and tired of all the adverse publicity, especially that being generated by 'disgruntled' employes. They considered the latter as 'insubordination' and 'disloyalty to the hand that feeds one.'

He wrote that he was warned "if I consider making any kinds of 'dumb moves,' then not only will I be 'eased out of the Postal Service,' but it will be made virtually impossible for me to land a new job of comparable professional status, that pays in the neighborhood of my present

The postal employe informed the FBI agent, therefore, that he couldn't talk to him. "If I possessed sufficient financial means!" he wrote, "I would throw 100 per cent effort into assisting you in your investigation. But I do not possess the necessary resources...

"I can only add that if you have been given the go-ahead to really 'root out' the facts behind the many allegations made in the media, and in and around certain congressmen, you will build your case without any input from me.'

The letter does not allege that Klassen personally was connected with the effort to shut him up. But we have established that the postmaster general contacted congressmen, labor leaders andbusinessmen in an attempt to bring pressure on Wilson to scuttle the hearings.

Klassen held a series of private lunches and huddles on Capitol Hill with members of the House Post Office committee, including Chairman Thaddeus Dulski, D-N.Y.; Rep. David Henderson, D-N.C.; Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill.; Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif.; and Wilson himself. The postmaster general sought to get the Wilson hearings called off, then postponed.

When Wilson made it clear he was going ahead with the hearings, Klassen asked order to defend him at the hearings. Derwinski went to Tokyo but got back in the Republican party to get any real

Meanwhile, the Wilson investigation has already substantiated a number of our charges and caught Klassen in some glaring misstatements.

I told that reporter I'd be delighted to see a situation emerge where we had a genuine two-party contest among blacks. But, I added, "IT is absurd for anyone to expect blacks to join the Republican party as long as the Republican party treats blacks like dirt and is basically hostile to the interests and aspirations of blacks and the other have-nots of this society.

consideration. What do you think of that?"

I pointed out to the reporter that, if he couldn't recall the name of "that black fellow in the White House." wasn't that itself a sort of devastating commentary on the lack of influence, prestige, clout enjoyed by blacks in the top levels of government under Richard M. Nixon, and so far under President Ford? There simply are no prestigious black symbols within the executive branch who would suggest to great numbers of blacks that they are welcomed eagerly by the GOP.

This is not a judgment of political partisanship, but the observation of a man who ordinarily would cringe at the prospect of a House of Representatives with 280 Democrats and 155 Republicans and a Senate with 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans, which we may have after the November elections.

Too much power eventually corrupts Democrats as well as Republicans, so it is not good for the country to slide precipitously toward one-party control of

But however wise that statement may be intellectually, it can never override the political reality of vast millions of people reacting against stupidity, greed, abuse of power, insensitivity to what they believe to be their vital needs.

The least sophisticated blacks in the land cronies were utterly hostile to minorities. They would throw a few crumbs from minority business programs to the few blacks they felt they could exploit politically, but the mass of blacks were to be mere political whipping boys, the subject of vote-getting demagoguery on such issues as "law and order," "forced busing," "racial quotas" and "welfare

So while a handful of black hustlers got goodies from the Small Business Administration or the Office of Minority Business Enterprises under Nixon, the average black family's annual income was dropping from 61 per cent of the income of the average white family to 59 per cent. Whereas the Kennedy and Johnson administrations had lifted 3.5 million blacks (and 11 million white people!) out of poverty, the number of blacks living in degradation and despair began to climb again under Nixon's policies.

Can anyone seriously expect blacks to ignore these harsh realities and turn Republican just because of some intellectual exhortation to "preserve the two-party system"?

Despite President Ford's longdemonstrated conservatism, despite his horrendous press conference statement about busing in Boston, I still believe he is infinitely more decent and compassionate than the men who controlled the White House in the Nixon era. I still think that he will not stoop to luring votes through shabby demagoguery which appeals to racism and greed.

Yet, there isn't much else a Republican candidate can appeal to successfully unless he is willing to renounce policies which have for generations fed the notion that the GOP is the party of the privileged Probably nothing would be better for this country politically than for the GOP to run for President someone who can say believably that he cares as much for the hungry, the sick, the jobless, the cheated as does any Democrat.

Only then can "that black fellow from the White House" visit Cincinnati or any place else and convince blacks that they, too, have a two-party choice.

Facets of the school textbook controversy

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON - The controversy sputters along in West Virginia over the selection of textbooks for the public schools. The Kanawha County superintendent has resigned, effective next June, and a majority of the local school board has said good riddance. There is nothing pretty in the whole affair.

Kilpatrick

It is, of course, a pleasant experience to watch the super-liberals squirm. A few years ago the supes were whooping it up for community control of community schools in the black neighborhoods of New York. Black parents understandably objected to elementary readers featuring the suburban adventures of lily-white Dick and lily-white Jane and their lily-white pooch Spot. The parents demanded that the offending books be removed and the supes were solumnly saying amen.

A considerable intellectual agility is required to maintain the proposition that community censorship of textbooks is fine for militant blacks in Manhattan but altogether abhorrent for militant whites in Appalachia. The proposition is untenable. It might as well be abandoned.

For the record, my own sympathies lie chiefly with the protesting parents, white or black, wherever they may be. With some conspicuous exceptions - notably the top notch readers published by the Open Court people — textbooks and teaching materials often range from the dreary to the

In West Virginia, parents complained that some of the teaching materials were subversive of order, discipline, and morality. If the excerpts they have sent me are fairly typical, their complaint has substance. Children were not meant to be barnyard geese, to be stuffed willy-nilly with whatever doctrines the professionals may want to cram down their throats.

Yet the other side of this controversy has merit also. A school system ought not to be at the mercy of the most ignorant, most bigoted, and most narrow-minded 51 per cent. When you come right down to it, there is no statisfactory choice between the literati and the wowsers. The wowsers are

If memory serves, it was the school board of rural Hanover County, just outside Richmond, that a few years ago banned "To Kill a Mockingbird." The flatworld yahoos who made that decision deserved the contempt they brought on their heads. Elsewhere in this supposedly civilized republic, local ignorami have banned the works of Faulkner, Hemingway, and Salinger. A Midwestern school board banned art books containing certain paintings of Titian and Renoir because the women, you know, well, they

How do you reconcile this conflict? You never reconcile it. You acknowledge that ours is not a perfect world, and you do the best you can. If the professional educators of West Virginia had exercised even minimal tact and common sense, they would not have antagonized the Kanawha County parents with far-out teaching materials. If the Chicken Little parents had kept their heads, they might have recognized that there is a big world on beyond Putney, Rand, Pond Gap and both sides. Professional educators have sensitive noses; they are offended by the intellectual B. O. of the great unwashed. This ill-concealed disdain is maddening to parents whose honest sweat pays for the public schools. The situation is further complicated by the pervasive liberalism of most textbook publishing houses. Their editors are light-years removed from Kanawha County and they have no inclination to get any closer. At the end of the line are the children who, if they were consulted, probably would make wiser choices than the grown-ups, anyhow. Nobody asks them.

Questions judgment of Kissinger

ST. LOUIS)—Congressional legislation cutting off military aid to Turkey unless its troops are withdrawn from Cyprus constitutes a major victory for American government and law. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said Sunday night

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Justice for Cyprus Committee of St. Louis, Eagleton said the action proved that the United States no longer tilted toward Turkey in its foreign relations.

Eagleton, however, said the action would not have been necessary if the Ford Adminstration had fulfilled its duties to the Constitution. "I do not question Secretary (Henry) Kissinger's sincerity in feeling that he alone holds the key to resolving the Cyprus conflict. But I do question his judgment in asserting that the national interest would be best served by ignoring the law," Eagleton

Earlier Sunday Eagleton lauded President Ford for urging increased unemployment benefits, but he called the proposed tax surcharge an added burden on the working people.

Israel is building more than $50 million worth of new fortifications to bolster its defenses along the 40-mile Golan Heights front with Syria, according to the Israeli state radio.

The semiofficial radio's military correspondent reported hundreds of workmen with dozens of bulldozers were trying to complete the construction before winter.

The report said the positions were being built to withstand Syrian artillery fire and were being equipped with increased firepower. It said Syrian units could be seen fortifying their lines on the other side of a United Nations buffer zone. Other Israeli sources said civilians in many of the 18 settlements on the Golan Heights were being armed with heavy cannon and mortars.

The new fortifications were an apparent Israeli reaction to the huge influx of Soviet weapons into Syria since the war a year ago. ## LETTER TO MR. JONES

I will direct my remarks to Mayor Jones and first state that I certainly question his suspension of Chief Miller without benefit of a public hearing.

Mr. Miller, if you recall, has served only under Republican Mayors. Mayor Studer, Mayor Walker and now you, Mayor Jones. Mr. Studer was always pleased with Mr. Miller's ability to carry out the duties of his office. Mr. Walker has publicly stated that he ran his office with the highest integrity and regard to the Citizens of Sedalia.

Mr. Jones, it seems that since the Democrats lost two seats on the Council, and that you now have the power to cast a tie breaking vote, you are certainly trying to use your political whip to get what you want. Luckily, you cannot use your tie breaking vote in this instance. It is very strange that several years have gone by with Mr. Miller serving his office efficiently under your administration and now you see fit to suspend him.

Some of these alleged charged have supposedly occurred during your term as Mayor. If these charges are true, where were you, Mr. Jones, that you didn't know what was going on?

There could only be one answer, that you want to get a Republican Chief of Police and you are resorting to these tactics to try and get it done.

Dolphins spoil Chiefs with: 17 to go

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Bob Griese's self-confidencedespite erratic passing-paid off in the closing seconds Sunday when he led the Miami Dolphins to a touchdown that beat the Kansas City Chiefs 9-3.

Griese's passing was shaky during the National Football League game, but he threw for gains of 29 and seven yards to lead Miami 53 yards in the final two minutes. Fullback Larry Csonka scored from a yard out with 17 seconds left.

Griese was booed by fans throughout the game as he completed 11 of 25 passes for 120 yards and had three passes intercepted.

"The fans were upset and I was upset too. I can understand how they feel. But I had confidence sooner or later we'd get it done," he said.

Coach Don Shula called the passing effort "as poor as I've seen it," but said he never considered replacing Griese.

Griese's off-target fourth-down pass killed one drive on Kansas City's three-yard line, and an interception ended another march at the Chiefs' seven. The other interceptions stopped the Dolphins at the Chiefs' 34-and 29-yard lines. Kansas City's only score came on a 21-yard field goal by Jan Stenerud after a second-period drive stalled at the Miami

The Chiefs' only other threat ended after they reached Miami's 25 when a Mike Livingston pass was picked off by Jake Scott at the 10.

Miami got its first two points when Tim Foley blocked a punt and the ball rolled into the end zone for a second-period safety. Lloyd Mumphord partially blocked another punt to give Miami possession at the Chiefs' 28 in the third period, but the Dolphins' couldn't capitalize.

Foley said the Dolphins expected to block some punts after films showed the chiefs spread their receivers too far and didn't have enough block-

"They were just out-numbered," he said. "Unless Jerrell Wilson can block for himself while he's punting, they're in trouble.

The victory gave the two-time Super Bowl champion Dolphins a 4-2 record in the American Football Conference Eastern Division and closed them to within a game of division coleaders Buffalo and New Eng-

Cards do it again

Louis Cardinals turned Houston Oiler bobles into a 31-27 victory Sunday and returned home as the only unbeaten team in pro football

Houston took a brief lead in the first quarter on Mike Montgomery's eight-yard touchdown catch from Dan Pastorini and Skip Butler's 28-yard field goal.

Then during the next two quarters, Houston fumbled three times and the Cards turned two into touchdowns and the third into a field goal.

Quarterback Jim Hart handed off to Jim Otis for the Cards' first touchdown in the first quarter on a one-yard run.

In the second quarter Hart threw touchdown passes of six and 40 yards to former University of Houston star Earl Thomas, with each TD following a Houston fumble. That gave St. Louis a 21-13 halftime lead.

Jim Bakken's 25-yard field goal in the fourth quarter came after another Oiler fumble for a 31-13 advantage.

The Cards gave the statistics to Houston and relished the victory. Hart finished with 14 of 25 pass completions for 134 yards. Terry Metcaif led all rushers with 77 yards on 16 carries and Jim Otis had 76 yards on 14

U.S. cities make bids for Games

VIENNA (AP) - U.S. Olympics enthusiasts will try to hammer home a simple message to Olympic chiefs this week - "Denver won't happen again."

Angeles is bidding against Moscow for the Summer Olympics of 1980. Lake Placid, N.Y. is making an unopposed application for the Winter Games

Both American delegations know they have to live down the memories of Denver, Colo., which was awarded the 1976 Winter Games and pulled out two years later after a state referendum. That did the U.S. image no good in the eyes of the International Olympic Committee, which starts its meeting here today.

IOC members have already said privately they must guard against a repetition of Denver. "Impossible," said Los Angeles Councilman Donald D. Lorenzen, one of his city's presentation team. "The state laws of California are different from those of Colorado. Under Californian law, no contract that has been signed can be invalidated by a referendum.

'Anyway, public opinion polls have shown that 71 per cent of the citizens of Los Angeles want the city to host the Olym-

"Impossible," said Lake Placid's John Shea, a double gold medalist in speed skating when the Winter Olympics were last held in Lake Placid in 1932.

"We have all our facilities ready and need to do nothing that would affect the environment and cause controversy. And we have full financial backing from both the federal and state governments.'

President Ford has written a letter to Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, emphasizing that what happened in Denver could not be repeated if Los Angeles and Lake Placid are awarded the 1980 Games.

The applicant cities are expected to go before the IOC Tuesday to present their plans and show films. A decision is not likely before Wednesday.

Jaworski's office is winding up activities

WASHINGTON (AP) - With attention focused on the Watergate cover-up trial, the special prosecutor's office is quietly winding up its business and preparing to close its doors

Additional charges probably will be brought, particularly for violations of campaign contribution laws, and there will be a final report, but the cover-up trial clearly represents the climax of the work of the unique office created to deal with the Watergate scandal.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski has submitted his resignation, effective Friday. In his letter to Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe. Jaworski said he felt the major work of his office had been completed.

In addition, sources within his office have indicated that most of the investigations under way are close to completion.

There had been some discussion within the prosecutor's office months ago about winding up everything but the campaign contribution law investi-

The award of ambassadorships in return for large contributions, the possibility that Nixon fund raisers had used tactics that would be regarded as extortion, and still other corporate contributions were considered areas that might require another year of investigation.

But for reasons still not clear, the probes are being wound up much more quickly. Since Archibald Cox built the staff in May 1973, the special prosecutors have brought charges against 44 individuals and 15 corporations

The individuals include former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, men who wielded unequalled and unquestioned power during the first Nixon administration. All three are defendants in the cover-up

Ehrlichman already has been convicted of violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, a charge stemming from his supervision of the socalled White House plumbers unit

Jaworski is leaving the prosecutor's office with his reputation enhanced.

Whether it remains unblemished will depend in part on the outcome of the cover-up trial and the final report his office is obligated to submit to the American people.

Jaworski already has said he could not include all his office learned about Nixon's Watergate role now that President Ford has barred bringing charges against the former President.

But he left one possibility open: he invited Congress to expand his mandate, to require that the final report include the full story of Watergate.

The newspaper, in a dispatch from Washington in today's editions, quoted Jaworski as saving Haig promised him "the inworski was nominated for the post Nov. 1, 1973.

Jaworski was also quoted as saying Haig later told him that by the end of that December. he had instructions not to give me anything else" in the way of evidence from the White of evidence from the White House.

The story quoted Jaworski as saying he had developed a close relationship with Haig and that Haig told him of President Nixon's impending resignation hours before it occurred.

"So far as I know, Al Haig never misrepresented anything to me. He and I had a very peculiar rapport," Jaworski was quoted as saying. "He talked plainly and bluntly. I couldn't help but like his manner, frankness and candor.

Jaworski said Haig called him after Nixon fired Archibald Cox, the first special prosecutor. Haig "spoke of the almost revolutionary state of the country and said he was going to put the patriotic monkey on my back." the Times quoted Jaworski as saying

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) Authorities secretly whisked James Earl Ray from his maximum security cell at Ten-nessee State Prison in Nash-ville to the Shelby County Jail for a long-awaited evidentiary

Officials at the Memphis jail said the man who once admitted the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. arrived Sunday night under the escort of U.S. Marshal George R. Tallent and at least five other federal officers and state corrections personnel

The 200-mile transfer was made in such secrecy that one of Ray's attorneys, Robert I. Livingston, was unaware that his client was in the city until contacted by The Associated Ray is attempting to withdraw his 1969 guilty plea in King's death. The first step begins Tuesday before U. S. District Court Judge Robert M. McRae Jr.

Federal authorities said last week that Ray would be held in the same maximum security cellblock where he was housed for eight months prior to entering his guilty plea to shooting the Nobel Prize-winning civil rights leader on April 4, 1968. Ray maintains he was pressured into the guilty plea by attorney Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex., and others who he claims stood to profit from the sale of publications about the King case and his involvement. He gained the right to an evidentiary hearing before McRae when the U.S. Supreme Court declined to interfere with a ruling by the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that Ray's allegations required 'a thorough judicial review.'

Appeal by candidate rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today turned down the appeal of Charles D. Ravenel from his disqualification as the Democratic candidate for governor of South Carolina.

The court, in a brief order with no explanation, upheld the decision of a three-judge federal court in Columbia, S.C., that Ravenel did not meet the residency requirement of the state constitution.

After Ravenel was disqualified, South Carolina Democrats held a convention and nominated Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, who Ravenel defeated in the state's Democratic primary and runoff.

Ravenel, 36, a Charleston investment banker, is a native South Carolinian who returned to the state in 1972 after several years on Wall Street.

After his victory in the Democratic primary. a suit challenging Ravenel's qualifications was filed by a disc jockey and a restaurateur.

They cited a requirement in the state constitution that in order to be governor a person must have been "a citizen and resident of this state for five years next preceding the day of the election. The South Carolina Supreme Court ruled on Sept. 23 that Ravenel did not meet this requirement.

NEW YORK (AP) — James typing with two fingers. A. Michener, disappointed that the celebration of the nation's Bicentennial will be "trivial and fragmented," has commemorated the event in his own way with his new book, "Centennial."

"There are certain rites of passage in human life that are very important indeed because they give meaning to life," said the Pulitzer Prize winner, who at one time was involved in putting into written form the national committee's plans for marking the 200th birthday of the United

Source. Michener, pronounced Mitchener, believes that history should be taught in schools with emphasis on what he calls the inherited character of the country: the reliance on the ballot, a fair system of taxation, free education for everybody, honesty in business relationships.

"I don't think the world or any nation is perfectible. We are flawed as individuals and as a society," he concedes. "But sensible people come to some kind of grips with whatever perils assail them at the moment, and I think they do it better within a tradition.

"If there is any one psychological cause for Watergate it is that except for Nixon none of these men had ever run for public office and they were all deficient in a knowledge of American traditions and American values.'

Such traditions and values are pointed up in Michener's latest novel, set in the imaginary town of Centennial, Colo., "a composite of towns in the West." The author spent four years on the extensive research and writing of the 909-page book, which traces the history of the land and its settlers from its geological beginnings to the present.

'I flood the reader with information," admits Michener, who speaks with quiet deliberation. "It may be that I provide too much but I'd sure hate to provide too little. I have a terrific memory and I can keep four or five hundred books pretty well in mind so I don't take a great many named for him. Michener works in blocks of about 100 pages, correcting, smoothing and revising before going on to the next block. He writes only in the morning,

Though he has no particular favorite among his long list of books he believes the best written one is "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," and he says "The Source" has had the greatest impact. "It's a strong book and has affected the lives of a lot of people.

Poll indicates inflation is biggest concern

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) -More than 80 per cent of America's voters consider initiation the most important problem facing the country, and more believe that the Democrats are most capable of dealing with it and other national problems, according to the Gallup Poll.

In the Sept. 27-30 survey of 1,527 adults in more than 300 locations, 81 per cent cited the high cost of living as the nation's No. 1 problem. Sixty-three per cent said Democras are better able to handle the country's problems, and 37 per cent favored Republicans.

The survey asked: "What do you think is the most important problem facing this country to-

Unemployment expected to be next major problem

By JOSH FITZHUGH AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite inflation, rising unemployment and the high cost of money, the nation should get through the coming months without a severe economic slump, say busi-nessmen surveyed by The Associated Press.

The business leaders - nearly a 100 retailers, manufacand bankers from around the country - were queried during the month be-fore President Ford's economic address to Congress.

Inflation remains the country's biggest economic problem, the businessmen say, but unemployment is a growing cancer and is expected by the businessmen to become the next major problem.

President Ford won general praise for what many called his cautious, prudent approach to economics, though many said they'd reserve judgment to see results. In general, they said Ford's economic summit meetings helped focus public attention on inflation, a critical need many businessmen said.

"Half of economics is science," says Maurice Ferre, Miami mayor and president of Maule, Inc., a construction company. "The other half is human nature, which outweighs the so-called economic truths. "If people believe there will be a recession, there will be." As might be expected, most of those businessmen interviewed say more business and less government is the long run answer to inflation.

"Rather than relief from government I think our real need today is relief of government,' says Ken Smith, executive with Jantzen, Inc., a Portland, Ore., clothing manufacturer.

"The government is the biggest consumer and the consumer still controls inflation," says Robert Duckworth of the First National Bank of Arizona.

A balanced budget is the first step toward easing inflation because it will reduce government demand for funds, thus freeing money for business expansion, said most businessmen questioned. Increased productivity and expansion, will cut inflation, they said. 'There are only two reasons for inflation: too much money or too few goods," says William Dillard Sr., an Arkansas retailer. "We need more producers.'

But, says Gabe Rutherford, president of an Arkansas steel fabricating firm: "The talk about cutting federal spending really means cutting construction. That would mean a bigger slowdown."

Despite growing evidence of a recession - consumer hesitancy, concern over inventories, rising unemployment - the businessmen still say inflation is the nation's chief economic headache.
